SKUNK SKINS ARE VALUABLE

Sold As Sable In Europe and America.

Raise The Little Animals.

Washington, June 24 .-- The skunk brings annually to the trappers of the United States about $3,000,0, It stands second in importance only to the muskrat among fur-hearing andma's. The value of he skunk skin in the raw fur market averaged about 35 ceats to $3.50 in December, 1913, and usually runs higher. Although this fur is not very pupu'nr in America. Especially to be recommended are cakes Europeans favor it because it wears v well, and has a inster which makes it rival the Russian sable is appearance. These lasts are emphasised in a new. farmers' bulletin (No. 587), most be-ing sent out by the United States Department of Agriculture, which may be had free on application by those who are interested in the 'Economic Value of North American Skunks."

Thirteen states now protect the skunk by game laws, and fuller unilerstanding of the economic value of these eractures to agriculture, as well as to commerce, will, no doubt, result in protective measures in other jocalities. The earliest legislation for the protection of these little animals grew out of appeals from hop growers in New York because of their value in killing the hop borer. This was in 1893, and since then laws have Indiana, I'l nois, Michigan, Missouri, months in every case, for at present animals.

right of farmers to destroy individual predatory skunks should always Two Men Cut at Church Ded'be reserved. London is a great market for lamerican skunk skins. In 1858 over 18,-000 sklue of this animal were exported to London; in 1911 over 2,-000,000. Although only a small percentage of our skins are now dressed and made up here, we have received In years past a number of them back after they have been made up abroad, and many American milles who would scorn to wear a skunk skin have been proud of their imported "black marten" or of their 'Alaska, rab'o' which was merely the American skunk fur more attractively labeled.

The process of dressing the skunk skin and removing any lingering odor has been improving year by car and meanwhile the fur has been galning popularity. The present extreme scarcity of Russian sable because of a law that forbids the taking of that fur favors the foreign market for sine skunk, and even in ties country the use of its skin is increasing.

The recent high prices for skuuk skins have led to a discusson of the subject of skunk raising on al courmercial basis. Although some breedens have encount red difficulties, on the whole there are good reasons for believing that a profitable industry may be developed. Skunks are less wild than other members of the family 'o which the more important small fur bearers belong and their dec permits a good deal of latitude in feeding, whereas the marten pull the mink require a kiet almost exclusively of meat. The problem of providing peus for rearing them is m'so I wa complicated in the case of the skunk-An inclosure for skunks should pecupy a well-drained sandy hillside. party shadeli by trees and partly open

TOBACCO POOLING

Annuls Crecelius Law.

Affects Pooling Organizations In Kentucky and Helps Loose Leaf Houses.

Washington, D. C., June 22-in an opinion handed down today by the United States supreme court it was held that the Crecelius act of the Ken tucky statutes, making it legal for farmers to pool their tobacco, mas unconstitutional. This decision was rendered upon an appeal by Patrick Collins of Mason county, a farmer, and Thomas Malone, both of whom were: heavily fined in the United States court, presided over by Judge Cochran, for selling their tobacco to outsiders, after they had agneed to pool with the Burley society.

The court held the law was lavalid; and declared it to be unconstitu-

The opinion outlined in the preceding dispatch is one that has been expected from the supreme court by lawyers of this state and lawyers about Washington. It annuls the Crecelius pooling law passed by the legislature of Kentucky. Since the flecision of the highest court of the land recently, in the prosecution against the International Harvester company, which was fined for violating the Kentucky anti-trust law in a suit brought in this state, reversing the Kentucky courts and declaring the anti-trust law of this state unconstituional, lawyers and judges have been at variance as to what would be the effect of that decision on the pooling law.

The decision was regarded by tobacco men, both growers and buyers, es one of great importance for them. While it has been practically granted that the decision would come as at did, those interested in the pooling reanizations of the state have hoped that a different construction would be placed upon the Crecelius law. The decision virtually kills the authority of the tobacco organizations over thir meembers. It is agreed that it affords , great advantage to the loose leaf tobacco houses and will make it easier for them to ostablish their mode of tobacco selling as the leading one

According to the above liccision, farmers who had heretofore pooled their tobacco with the Green River Tobacco Growers' association and the American Society of Equity, and then sold it to independent buyers and also over the loose leaf floors, as twas dene this last season, had a right to do so, and cannot be prosecuted.

A CRAZY CURRENCY

China Has a Monetary System That Borders on the Chaotic.

UNIT OF VALUE IS THE TAEL.

Yet the Tael Is Neither a Coin Nor an ver Shoes and Cash on a String.

Of the many strange things in China To the foreigner it seems a miracle that any business can be irrosacted successfully with such a medium of exchange. It has been described as chaotic. Nevertheless business and trade Bourlsb In China, which speaks the Chinese. Perhaps the fact that such a thing us currency was known accounts for the fact that the Chinese. with such a tax system as they new of commercial nations.

In China all forms of exchange from barier nje are in ase. A very large part of the country's business is done against the actual delivery of weighed silver. For convenience silver is melted into rough ingots having the shape of the Chinese shoe. These silver shoes live stamped upon their their theness and weight. The unit of weight is the tael, which is equal to a quantity of silver weighing 580 grains troy and is worth about 60 cents in our money.

The tael is not an ingot nor n coin. but simply an abstract term signifying a unit of weight, such as a "pound" of butter or an "onnce" of gold. Though an abstract term, it is the measure of wealth and the unit of value throughout the length and breadth of China. A man buys a business for so many tacks of sliver. His profits are comjuited in tacis. When he makes pnyment he weighs out the silver according to this unit.

The silver shoes vary in weight from one to seventy-five taels. All silver to having any one waggle a finger unshops and banks have forges, where the silver is melted in Iron ladles and conred into molds. The smellers with their ladies and molds remind one of cooks. They stir the sliver with a pair of metal chopsticks. To one not aware of what they were doing it would be natural to suppose that they were engaged in concecting something good to ent. In the process of recasting the ingots their fineness is often changed, being either improved or debased. whichever best suits the interests of the abop. Rankers and money changers are able to determine the quality of the silver by the sense of touch. The sellers or depositors are siways at their mercy and must often aubmit to the operation of having their silver discounted on account of "had touch."

In the interior of China small purchases are made with copper coins with square holes in the cenier. These are called "cash" and are threaded on strings so that they may be carried across one's shoulder or on a pole. A string of 1,000 of these cash is worth about 50 cents in our money. Somethe silver shoes and used for small purchases. When traveling in the interior one must take with him n large amount of silver shoes, exchanging them for strings of cash at the various shops. The money changers have two sets of scales, one to be used in the purchase of silver and the other in the selling of it. In an aitempt some years ago to introduce a currency based on western models the Chinese government purchased and put into circulation several million Mexican dollars. The people took to the new coins and called for more. The provincial governments then set up mints and began to coin Chinese dollars of approximately the same weight and fineness as the Mexican dollars. They also coined an enormous amount of subsidiary Items In the shape of small silver coins and eqqer jennies. Soon It was discovered that the new currency was as austable as the old. The value of the dollar in relation to the subsidiary coinage varied from day to day. 'The cent was never worth the hundredth part of a dollar. Some days 110 cents were required to make up si, and on other days it took 130 cents. Similarly the vaine of the dollar as compared with the tael was continually fluctuating. Sometimes $100 would bring 70 taels and at other times only 35. It was sickening to the people. but very profitable to the money changers.-Harper's Weekly.

The rapid increase in adult till! eracy according to P. P. Clarton, United States commissioner of education is costing an economic loss of $500,000,000 a year and has become a menace to representative gov-

This is a statement coming from in eminent authority, but seems hard

Illiteracy does unquestionably cause serious economic loss to the country, but it seems the estimate submitted by Commissioner Claxton is omewhat exaggerated.

It is also the opinion of the commissioner that if industrial makingers were fully cognizant of the degree of illiteracy existing among adults that they would co-operate with public school authorities in the establishment of classes to be held in factories, stores, construction calmus and elsewhere in working hours, in the daytime without loss of pay, for instruction in reading, writing and speaking. This is a valuable suggestion, and while the plan would cost possibly We can supply your wants in the an hour's labor, in the end the benefit would more than compensate for this.

There are some classes of labor which do not require men and women with educations, but it stands to reason that the man or woman wh Mrs. A. V. Goodin and children can read and write, who have at least left Wednesday for Eikton, where the a smattering of education are more Intelligent and are qualified to do better and more effective work.

The boards of education are Boing all that they can to educate the masses, but the boards of education cannot do everything. Poverty sometimes takes the boy and girl from the classroom before they have even had the foundation of their Queation. If it was possible for these children to devote even an hour, at their places of occupation, to simple lessons in English, in writing and spellug, it would give them at least a Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fleids, of chance to amount to something in

The trouble is the child is placed at work as soon as the law permits and frequently earlier than this, and a limited amount of Mayapple in violation of the statutes protect ing children. The grid of povertty and sometimes the greed of parents are responsible for this. The opportunities of an education are denied the

> Unless compulsory laws are enactd making a child's ducation a legal necessity, the industrial interests of the country will find it decidedly to their advantage to follow the suggestions of Commissioner Chirton and co-operate with the public school nuthoritics.

The Springfield (Mass.) Republican s an independant Democratic newsaper and a strong supporter of every important, policy of the national administration. It is unable to overcok, however, the significance of the special congressional election result in the Seventh New Jersey D'striet, and thus comments upon it:

The Democratic Tariff revision is very plainly regarded without entiuslasm in the New Jersey district that ias elected a Republican by such a thumping plurality. The Republican candidate was strongly supported by The American Protective Tariff League and he made the Tariff the chief issue. The Socialists and Demperuts together polled about as many votes as the Republicans, to be sure, but the Socialists take little interest in the Tariff one way or another. It Was a Case In Which Mystery and Suspicion Were Mixed, and It Awoke the Question of a Physician's Right to Violate a Pledge of Secrecy.

This is a story, told by a well known physician, of a problem that sublenly confronted him and how he interpreted the ethics of his profession and acted on it.

"I was roused one night," he sald, by a telephone call. An unfamillar volce asked me if I could attend a mun who had been Injured. I answered that I could If the case was urgent, but before I could ask who was calling the speaker answered:

"The question stared at me: Did the ethics of the medical profession allow me to go to the police and tell them what I knew, or did my promise blad me to secrecy? I thought it over all day and thally decided that I had no right to say anything about the mat ter. I made three more trips in the same manner. All this time I watched the papers, but no trace was found of the burglars. When I made my last visit I told the man who had that called me that my fee would be $50. He took from a large roll some bills and handed them to me without a word. He drove me home, and that was the last I ever saw of either of them.

"That was a good many years ago, but I've often wondered whether I did right in not violating that nean's con-Adence."

"I don't think you did," said a member of the group, "The medical profession has no right to shield a criminal. Women and children should be given the greatest protection we can give them, but no word given a crimanal is bluding."

"But suppose it had turned out that the man was not the burglar in question? I believe he was, but it might have been otherwise."

A DOCTOR'S STORY FOR THE CHILDREN

The Game of Artists.

A girl and a boy are chosen as eaptains, and they choese alternately from the company until all are divided into two parties under the respective captalus. Then the girl seats one of her pair; so that he must face the members of the opposition, who then address remarks to him, each in the charneter of an artist. To every remark the answer ls, "'Twas I," except when an artist's name is mentioned. Then he must say "Indeed!" For lustance, the head of the opposition might say, "I pulited the picture of a donkey." "Twas I."

"He was eating thistics." ""Twas I."

"Resa Bonheur furnished the copy." "Indeed," should be the miswer to this. Then the next member of the opposition takes up the observations. "Chase has a new model."

"Indeed!" "I get him for Chase from Sing Sing."

"Indeed!" "He was in jall for blgamy."

"Twas L"

No matter how much the other guests may laugh while playing this game, the victim must keep quite se rlous. If he laughs or if he fails to make the proper response he is obliged to take his seat with the opposite side. and the captaln who chose him bises one member of her company,

The idea is to see which leader wil have the larger party at the end of the time fixed upon as the duration of the game. The sldes take turns in tensing the victim sent from the opposite side. Each member of the opposite party is expected to make three remarks to him, the first always referring to a picture. If he fails in this he is promptly called to sit on the opposite slde.

The Oak Tree.

The oak is one of the largest, handsomest trees, often living to a great age and easily holding its place as "monarch of the forest." The historic oak at Salem, N. J., and the Blunston oak, at Durby, Pa., can each lay claim to between 200 and 300 years of age Sometimes these trees live for centu rles loager. We have different kinds of oaks. Some of the best known are the white, scarlet, pln, bur, chestnut oak, black and bear. Their leavevary in shape, but all are wavy edged. When these are about half grown the tiny red and yellow blossoms appear, growing in little clusters the whole length of the long. drooping stems. The oaks are the only trees bearing seeds called acorns. Each nut is in a cap or shell, which protects it. The bur oak bears acorns baving a pretty fringe of scales, which has given them the name

Story of a Proud Cat.

One day there lived a very proml cat whose name was Kltty. She had soft, black and glossy fur, with a lifne ribbion round her neck. The house in which she lived was a big, beautifu! building. Opposite her lived a poor dog named Toby, who, being minsed to the luxurles of Kltty, did not know what It was to be proud. At this time there was a certain law between dogs and cats. This law was that when you are pleased you must wag your fall, but when you are augry you must keep It stiff. Kitty, thinking that as she was so rich it was nufair to make her do even one thing the same as such a poor creature as Toby, broke this law and dld just the opposite. She was, of course, punished, and since then cuts wag their talls when they are angry Blowing out the candle is an amusing party game. A lighted candle laplaced on a table. Each person in turn is hillodfolded, told to take two sleps forward, turn sround and blow it out, This always causes much amusement. as the one blindfolded is very apt to find bluself blowing at the wall."

Blewing Out the Candie.

BEATEN IN THE GAME OF LOVE

Resolute Man Conquers a Tantalizing Girl.

"Why, Heywood, having asked my daughter's hand, do you continually out off the wedding?"

Heywood Glover sat musing for a few moments before replying to his prospective mother-hi-law's question. "I am not sure Estelle and I will be happy together. She has a passion for attention. My love does not seem to satisfy her. Better give her time to make up her mimi that she really prefers me to all the rest."

"I noist admit that you show very go. I sense, I will speak to Estelle, and we shall see If she will not do better." "That would avail nothing. If this love of admiration, which usually carrles with it a love for dress, is a part of her nature, she will not heed your admonition. Say nothing to her. Leave It to me to decide when, if ever. she is titted to get on with one man."

There was no need for either to admunish Estelle, for she averheard every word from behind a portlere.

The winter social season was at its height, and Estelle, being engaged, did not scriple to go, out in the evening with her byer as sole escort. The first ball they attended after she had overheard her lover's remarks about her she put on her finest costume and all her jewels. When Heywood saw her thus arrayed, he frowned. As soon as they arrived at the ball Estelle accepted the attentions of every man who was disposed to seek her and seemed pleased that their number was greater than ever before. Heywood stood beside her till her card was filled, then left her to her first partner and did not rejoin her till it was time to leave. The next day he wrote her a note breaking the engagement.

Estelle luclosed his note without a word of comment or reply in an envelope addressed to Heywood Glover. Esq., and sent it through the mall.

Heywood was somewhat taken aback at this unexpected treatment. He considered it, to say the least, evidence of a wayward disposition. He deemed himself insulted by the girl who was to have been his wife, and the next step, if any, must be an apology from ber. This was a man's view.

The next entertalnment at which Heywood and Estelle met was a promenade concert. Estelle was dressed with the utmost simplicity. This was gratifying to Heywood, though somewhat surprising. He hoped it was in deference to his wishes till Estelle passed him on the arm of her escort. when she turned away her head. There is no weapon with which a woman can fight a man so effectively as contempt, Heywood winced. How tantallzing that she should have respected his wishes as to her costume and at the same time declined to recognize hlm! There was another inconsistency -Instead of accepting the attentions of a number of men, she confined berself almost exclusively to one.

Things were not going Heywood's my. Instead of the ap looked for us the only possible solution to the situation Estelle had cut him and had evidently taken up with another man. When the self deposed lover went home that night, he was very near a collapse, very nearly ready to sne for reinstatement. But the next morning he awoke an hour before daylight and thought it all over when his brain was cool and resolved, come what

When a resolute man makes up his mind that he is right and, after often going over his premises, invariably comes to the same conclusion, he is hard to move. Day after day passed, during which Heywood whenever he met Estelle treated her as though she had had no place whatever in his life, Estelle endeavored to freeze him by her haughty demeanor and at those made him feel that he was a worm of the dust. She went so far us to circulate a report that she was engaged to unother man. But he stood firm.

They Hoywood being somewhat left out in the cold, took up with a widow, This move though he made it without the slightest intention of using it as a weapon, carried consternation to his beloved enemy. Estelle, panic strickeu. sought an immediate opportunity for surrender, but instead of sending for Heywood and frankly confessing that she had been in the wrong she resorted to a very petty and transparent device. At a cotilion party, suddenly releasing herself from ber partuer, she went over to where Heywood was standing and without looking at blut pinned a favor to the lapel of his coat. Then. casting up her eyes, she felgned to have been mistaken in the person. Heywood was not duped, uor did she expect him to be. Why she had not surrendered openly and aboveboard be, belug a man, could not see, but he dld not trouble blimself about so small a matter since he knew from that moment he was ber master. He put his arms about her, and they sailed away. After circling the room Heywood led her Into a window sent, where they remained for the rest of the evening. Then and there a treaty of pesce was signed. Heywood was very leulent with her, though she knew well that he would stand no more trifling.

However, all this was much ado shout nothing, for Mrs. Glover, now having several children to take care of. has neither the time nor the inclination to accept attentions from other men than her bushand. Besides, she has lost some of her heauty, and her admirers bave fullen away.

"Mr. Hin. from some place no longer strong man was very kind to me when I was enough to hold it and forms a tremendous blazing arc as it leaps from cloud to cloud or from cloud to earth. The little spark of a laboratory machine makes a crackling noise, and the gigantle one in the sky makes a correapondingly great one as it tears through the air and sets up vibratious of tremendous intensity.

But it is noticeable in a thunderstorm that the thunderclaps are of very different loudness and quality of sound. The length and strength of a thunder peni, as a meteorologist points ont in Knowledge, depend mainly on the size of the accompanying lightulug discharge, but the loudness and sharpness of the crack that comes before the peal depend chiefly on the direction taken by the electric current relative to the hearer.

The first cruck or rending noise comes from the flash itself; the peul that follows consists of echoes from the clouds or mountain sides when tills are near. Furthermore, the noise of the actual flash comes to us from all along the lightning's path. We hear lirst that at the beginning of the dash and inter the noise made toward the end of its path. When this is short and we are so situated with reference to it that the whole report reaches our ears almost simultaneously. quarter of a second, it sounds like one terrific thump or crash. But if the electric arc is long and the noise takes two or three seconds to reach us completely it translates itself into a loug. tearing roar. Thus you may judge of the character of a lightning flash from its own report of proceedings.

Announcement.

In view of the fact that in Ohio ed no Summer Course in ether Normal or High School Work, we have decided to establish such a course at Fordsville, beginning June 1, 1914, and continuing Eight Weeks.

The object of this School is not to work against either of the State Normals, but to assist them in raising the educational standard of Keutucky, by bringing a first-class summer course nearer home.

Special attention will be given to training teachers for the June and July examinations, and also, a very thoroug' course in High School work will be given to those who wish to teach such work, or lessen the time required to complete the High School work.

This school will be conducted by PROF. F. T. SHIJLTZ, who is an A. B. Grahuste of Kentucky State Univorsity and holds a State and Life certificate.

Students may enter and classify at any time. For further information, write or
